FEDERAL WAGE "SCHOOL DAYS" ISSUE REVIVED

Repeal of Lloyd George's Senate Expected to Act on Levy on Land Values Urged.

NEW POLICY FRAMED

British Commons Consider Increase in Excess Profits Assessments.

(Washington Herald-Cross Atlanti Service, Special Cable Dispatch.) By J. M. DENVIER.

London, April 20.-The Lloyd George government has put the stamp of failure on a policy through which eleven years ago the Premier rose to greatness.

The eagerly expected budget bill, introduced by Austin Chamberlain before a jammed house, proposed as a cardinal point repeal of the famous Lloyd George land values taxation.

Laugh at Proposal. The repeal proposal was met with ironical laughter and cries of "send a wireless to San's Remo," where Lloyd George is attending the Supreme Council Conference.

The budget proposed an increase in the excess profits tax, accompanied by a new tax on the profits of limited companies.

ing to Senator Sterling, or South Dakota, chairman of the Civil Service Committee.

The Johnson-Noian bill passed the House last July. It provides a minimum wage of $3 a day or $1,080 a year for Federal employes throughout the United States. Senator Hiram Johnson, author of the bill, will return to Washington next week and is expected to hasten consideration of the measure.

"I wish," said Senator Sterling, "that I could agree with Senator Kenyon that the bill will pass promptly. I fear it will provoke a good deal of discussion, and in the present state of the Senate calendar, it may not pass at this session. For my own part I am heartily in favor of it. It does not conflict with either the retirement bill or the provisions the retirement bill or the provisions of reclassification."
